Maine State Library, Museum and Archives: On June second at high noon, the new five million dollar Maine State Library, Museum and Archives Building was officially dedicated.

"The dedication of the Maine State Library, Museum and Archives Building marks the end of a long effort to obtain the facilities that will enable Maine to preserve and present its historic heritage more effectively.

The ceremonies note the end of one effort and the beginning of another. The building is the goal toward which many Maine citizens gave unstintingly of their time and talents. Now that it is a reality, it falls upon the people of the State, as well as the three agencies, to use the building and its facilities effectively as a means to achieve multiple purposes involving both Maine's past and its future." --from page six of the Dedication Program.

Hours for the new Maine State Library are from 9:00-4:00, Monday through Friday. The Law Library remains in the State Building and retains the hours 8:00-5:00, Monday through Friday.

The Maine State Museum is open to the public 9:00-4:00, Monday through Friday. In August, a special exhibit featuring the Dr. Freddy and Regina T. Homburger Collection will serve as a rather spectacular opener.

The Public Search Room of the Maine State Archives is open from 8:30-4:00, Monday through Friday. Records presently available for public search include:

- (1) Census of Maine: original census schedules for 1850, 1860, 1870 and 1880.
- (2) Census of Maine: Microfilm copies of census schedules for 1790-1880.
- (3) Delayed returns of Maine vital statistics to 1892 from selected Maine towns.
- (4) Microfilm copies of selected Maine town records.
- (5) Microfilm copies of Maine Mortality Schedules for 1850 and 1860.

Maine Maritime Records at Mystic Seaport: Papers of several shipowners or agents, shipmasters, a few shipbuilders, logbooks of various vessels and some miscellaneous items are among the Maine materials in the *G.
