

Three new books on Maine . . .

John Josselyn,
Colonial Traveler

*A Critical Edition of
Two Voyages to New-England*
PAUL J. LINDHOLDT, editor

An English aristocrat, Josselyn visited the newly-settled province of Maine from 1638-39 and again from 1663-71. Here is a welcome new edition of his unusual descriptions of the flora and fauna, folklore, and Indian and Puritan cultures of that time. $27.95

The Lobster Gangs of Maine

JAMES ACHESON

An anthropologist describes the working world of Maine lobstermen, focusing on the intricate network of community and personal ties that determine success or failure.

Illus. $9.95 paper / $20.00 cloth

Maine in the Early Republic

From Revolution to Statehood

CHARLES E. CLARK,
JAMES S. LEAMON,
and KAREN BOWDEN, editors

A wide-ranging, lavishly illustrated book on the political, economic, and social forces at work during the dynamic four decades preceding Maine statehood. Original essays by noted scholars complement a remarkable collection of art and artifacts.

NEW MAINE HISTORY

—from Maine!

Aroostook: A Century of Logging in Northern Maine

Richard W. Judd

Aroostook County, Maine, on New England's northern rim, has always had a character of its own. A frontier long after the rest of the eastern seaboard was settled, Aroostook subsequently evolved a unique international character as a result of active trade with its downriver neighbor, New Brunswick.

Richard Judd's new book explores the development of Aroostook in the years 1831-1931, tracing the lumbering industry from its beginnings through its peak expansion and up to the devastation of the Depression years. As Judd's concluding chapter shows, if modern Aroostook bears only slight resemblance to its pioneering days, the people of Aroostook County can still draw on a legacy of frontier community spirit and independent initiative in meeting new challenges.

Bangor, Maine, 1769-1914: An Architectural History

Deborah Thompson

A "comprehensive history of Bangor's rich architectural heritage from 1769 to the First World War. Closely tying the lavishness of local architecture with the city's economic boom, the book works to tell the history of this one-time lumber capital during its heyday."—Down East Magazine

"Deborah Thompson's long-awaited book stands virtually alone as a comprehensive reference to the architecture of a Maine city. No one has dissected a community's building history in as much detail as Dr. Thompson. . . . Invaluable to scholars throughout the country."—Maine Preservation News

An Invitation to Membership

MAINE HISTORICAL SOCIETY
485 Congress Street
Portland, Maine 04101

The Maine Historical Society cordially invites you to join in the work of collecting, preserving, and publishing the history of the State of Maine, and of maintaining one of America's most notable historic homes, the Wadsworth-Longfellow House.

As an active member of the Society you will receive the Maine Historical Society Quarterly, the only journal in Maine devoted exclusively to the encouragement of scholarly investigation into Maine's history, open access to the stacks of the state's largest historical and genealogical research library, free admission to the Wadsworth-Longfellow House, and the privilege of participating in the meetings of the Society.

I would like to become a member of the Maine Historical Society in the category indicated below:
