All correspondence and manuscripts for review should be sent to Editor, Maine History, 5774 Stevens Hall, University of Maine, Orono, ME 04469. Two copies of manuscripts should be submitted in double-spaced typescript and should conform to The Chicago Manual of Style, 14th ed. Manuscripts accepted for publication in Maine History are typically 30–35 pages in length. Manuscripts will not be returned unless accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The Maine Historical Society assumes no responsibility for the opinions and interpretations expressed by its contributors. The articles appearing in Maine History are abstracted in Historical Abstracts and America: History and Life.

Books for review should be sent to the book review editor, Stanley Howe, Director, Bethel Historical Society, Dr. Moses Mason House, Bethel, ME 04217.

Cover Illustration: As the logging camp interior on our cover illustrates, Maine history can challenge, as well as confirm the gender stereotypes we have invested in it. This issue of Maine History features stories of Maine men and women – a river driver, a Civil War soldier, a brotherhood of dock workers, and a fictional herbalist and all-around keeper of Maine's history – who capture the spirit of Maine's past in gendered ways. Masculine characteristics, like a test of skill and bravado, an ordeal stoically endured, a united effort to protect pay and prestige, contrast with Sarah Orne Jewett's characterization of the women of Dunnet Landing, who display a sense of quiet confidence and dignity rarely found in the written annals of Maine history. The cover illustration (photo #328) is from the Maine Folklife Center, University of Maine.
