

Taxonomy of the Border I

by Erin Murphy

They took the children from their mothers.
They ignored their cries. The children's cries.
The mothers' cries. They took the children from their mothers. Babies in diapers, cocooned in woven senkas, girls with pink butterfly barrettes, boys in red Elmo shirts, children with sleep in their eyes.